Paradise

by Caroline Lavender

edited by Kris Straub

This article appeared in the June 2005, issue of the Loma Linda Neighborhood News.

Many people buy land in the mountains to serve as a retreat. Others look for a piece of virgin desert so they can feel more connected with nature. Most people are unable to buy large enough areas to truly find that which they seek. The roads, homes and fire protection measures all degrade and sometimes destroy the very things they were trying to be close to. We all want to own our own piece of paradise, so why not create them on city lots such as ours?

Our lots seem larger and larger as the surrounding suburbs are creating smaller and smaller yards. It looks as if downtown will fill up with lofts and condos, which will be equipped with small porches or decks at most. Our great location, generous yards and irrigated lots will make us a haven for those who want to create a personal paradise right outside their doors.

What is your yard to you? A buffer from neighbors, a place for your dogs, a place to store junk, an outdoor cooking place, a place to grow fresh food, a smoking hangout, a place for kids to play? How often do you sit outside and observe the sounds and sights? Can you make time to do "nothing" for 15 minutes? This time may be more valuable than you realize. Go outside; find shade and a comfortable spot. Relax and observe. Or roam the neighborhood; see some great gardens. You can create a wide variety of looks in this climate. Native plants are always a great idea, but you can also do large shade trees, lush tropicals, exotic succulents and cacti.

If you expand your plantings beyond a few bushes and a lawn, you will see an immediate difference in the birds and insects. If your yard attracts only sparrows, starlings or pigeons, you could use a little more variety. One of my favorite things is watching leaves and branches react to our constant breezes. The subtle experience of a few minutes outdoors really can't be properly written about. It really becomes a quality of life issue.

This is just one possibility for creating real experiences that are truly connected, with integrity, to the world around you. Trust me, the value far exceeds that trip to the mall. And if you are motivated, you might just decide to make your own yard a little piece of personal paradise.

Recipe Request for a Neighborhood Cookbook

by Annette Sexton

Do you have a favorite recipe that you would like to share? Maybe it's one that you remember from your childhood. My mom used to love potato pancakes and I remember that I always helped her make them.

The Phoenix Homestead Association would like to create a neighborhood cookbook. If you have recipes to share with us we would love to put them in the cookbook.

When you submit the recipe please tell us your "Recipe Story". Is it a family recipe that has been handed down through the generations, is it from a dear friend, or from a favorite publication?

Please e-mail your recipe to me at; amb56@cox.net or snail mail it to: Annette Sexton, 2505 E. Pinchot, Phoenix, AZ 85016.

Mary Buteau's Potato Pancakes

My Mom called this her "soul food". We had potato pancakes every Friday when I was young. The only thing that I didn't like was grating the potatoes with a hand grater. Ouch, that hurt my knuckles.

3 potatoes, raw, medium size
1 Tablespoon flour
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt

Grate potatoes using a blender or hand grater.

Add next 3 ingredients, stir well.

Drop by large spoonfuls into a heavy frying pan that has about an inch of oil, (I always use a cast iron pan) and cook until browned and lacy around the edges, turning once.

Enjoy!

I SEE THAT ...

by Sylvia Wagner

Due to the recent passing of my Mom, Dorothy, at age 98, my thoughts are naturally focused inwardly and on my family. The logo that appears here is one my Father, John, used on his local valley newspaper, The Sunnyslope Journal from 1951 to 1959. Sunnyslope is an area centered on Dunlap and seventh streets that long ago was incorporated by Phoenix.

Mom, born in 1907, was related to the Chisholms of the Chisholm cattle trail. Her family still owns the original family farm in Marshall, Michigan dating from the mid 1800's. Dad, born in 1894, was a first generation American. He passed away in 1982. They knew firsthand the echo of the bitterness of the Civil War. Teddy Roosevelt was a huge influence on their lives and World War I claimed relatives in my Mother's family.

Duluth, Minnesota was the town of their childhoods. Mom would describe to me the wooden sidewalks, horses and buggies, the rare automobile, itinerant photographers, Gypsies stopping at homes to read fortunes and riding away in colorful carts. She spoke of the amazing aroma fogging trolley cars filled with people in the era of little sanitation or laundering- eau de cologne drenched bodies that knew neither deodorant nor consistent bathing. Electricity was not to be the norm for many years to come, telephones weren't in the White House until the twenties and bacteria and germs were little understood.

In the twenties, my Folks danced in Vaudeville around the country on one-night stands. They lived through cheap hotels, bad food and terrible winter storms crossing the Rockies in a cloth top Model T. Owned by a fellow performer, the windshield wipers consisted of men clinging to the open doors, their hands brushing the snow away.

Dad became an editor and writer on the Detroit Freepress for many years during that city's tumultuous 20th century history. Covering race riots, murders, big city politics and the speakeasy period of prohibition which was fueled by the proximity of the Canadian border, lawless gangs and boatloads of liquor speeding across Lake Superior, my Dad was a figure out of black and white movies about boilerplate newspapering.

Moving to Phoenix, the now family of six lived in a homestead adobe outside the city limits - 16th street and Northern - with no cooling and little heating. WWII was over, Korea was looming, Viet Nam, the Gulf Wars were ahead Man would land on the moon. Amos and Andy on the radio yielded to the rise of television and computers arrived. No one dreamed people would own a tiny version of the original giants as personal office equipment or the Internet and what it would do to the world. We were only beginning to feel at ease with commercial air flight and telephoning long distance.

I often think of my Mother's ability to accept the monumental changes that span nearly a century and it was with some regret Mom left this life for her intellect was continually sparked by the mystery of what was around the corner That she was faithful and constant to her truthful nature and good humor is an understatement. We came to live here, which was good fortune indeed and I thank everyone for contributing to the safety and quietude that provided peace for us.

And I know my Mom thanks you too.
